B.C. nazi's ass kicked

Scott

Another nazi is on the run. This time not from his own backstabbing comrades — it was the anti-haters in British Columbia who gave him the boot!

Scott first came to the attention of people in Chilliwack B.C. last year when he opened a branch office of the "Church of Christ in Israel"—otherwise known as the Aryan Nations—in his junk-filled garage. He was ordained as a "pastor" by Richard Butler, Aryan Nations big-boy, at their nazi compound in Hayden Lake, Idaho. Following the teachings of that loser, Scott started organizing in the lower mainland in B.C. but at most could convert only a handful of racist skinheads. Generally he was met with increasing resistance from the community, even from the mayor who did not like a rabid racist roaming around and putting up his flyers under cover of darkness in the streets of Chilliwack. Many community forums and anti-hate propaganda campaigns, organized by the Salmon Arm Coalition against Racism, led to his ejection from Chilliwack in May.

Chuck next showed up in Kelowna, B.C., hoping that he could tap into some rednecks there. Soon the local people started organizing against his monstrous presence. Resistance culminated in a Rock Against Racism concert with 300 people showing up to express their anger.

Well, at first Scott bragged to the media that he couldn't be moved by protests. His macho image won him the respect of Richard Butler, who crowned him "Aryan of the Year" early this summer.

But soon after the award ceremony, Chuck was on the run. He told the media that he'd split from the Aryan Nations. His weepy wife Leane mourned that Chuck couldn't get a job to support his two kids, and that nobody wanted to follow him in B.C. At the end of August it was reported that Chuck packed his bags and moved to Ontario.

He might have planned to join a former Heritage Front member, the suicidal Leslie Jasinski, who was seen barking at Chuck's heels out in B.C. Anti-racists remember Leslie from the French Crueller gang — a "cell" of racial comrades who tried to hold up a donut shop two years ago to fund the Racial Holy War, in clown suits! Or maybe Chuck was hoping to hook up with Canadian Patriots Network geek Mark Lemire. Mark gave up on running the old Equal Rights for Whitey hotline this summer, to put all his steroid energy into spilling bile into the Internet on his BBS, "Digital Freedom".

Michie Mee, one of many artists raising money for the cause.

Justice for Gentles

In support of all prisoners' rights not be killed by prison staff, ARA staged a benefit concert in August featuring the Dream Warriors, Michie Mee, Nu Black Nation, UBAD Massive, Pezz, the Jungle Bouti Orchestra, Cyrus, DJs Soul Controllers and freestylers Double Soul, Plains of Fascination, and MC No Mega Rocks. It was an amazing show—styling beats and a cool cash infusion to the Robert Gentles Action Committee.

Robert "Tex" Gentles was a Black prisoner being held at Kingston Penitentiary. He was killed on October 24, 1993, after asking why prisoners weren't being fed during a lockdown at the prison. A six-guard "extraction team" invaded his cell and when they left, Robert was dead—asphyxiated, with big bruises on the back of his neck.

Robert's mother, Carmetta Gentles, was very suspicious about her son's death from the very beginning. She didn't accept that he had just spontaneously died, and she wants to hold the guards accountable for Robert's death. She succeeded in laying private guards of manslaughter and criminal negligence causing death against all six guards—the first time in Canada. But after the Crown (government) took over the case, all the charges were eventually dropped! Mrs. Gentles is appealing that decision.

As part of the ongoing struggle, Mrs. Gentles is organizing a vigil outside the Kingston Penitentiary on Saturday, October 21, to commemorate the 3rd anniversary of Robert's death. Supporters from Toronto can get hook up with a bus to Kingston for the vigil, leaving 2:30pm and getting back at midnight, for $5-$15 sliding scale. Call ARA to reserve your seat!

But if Chuck showed up in Toronto, he sure didn't stay long! Guess he wasn't into Leslie's plan to take the quick route to Valhalla at the hands of local anti-racists. At press time he was back in B.C., out on bail for trespassing on a military base, as well as mischief over $5000.

Regent park resistance

Regent Park is a poor neighbourhood in Toronto's east end with a large community of families of African and Caribbean descent. It has long been stigmatized as a "bad part of town" which white middle klass people go out of their way to avoid.

But if anything makes Regent Park a bad place to be, it's the rampant epidemic of racist violence and dehumanizing treatment dished out to community residents by Metro kkkops and Metro Toronto Housing Authority (MTHA) security.

51 Division, the police station garrisoned right in the heart of the projects, is an especially notorious gang of thugs. To get an idea of what 51 Division is like:

* One 51 Division kkkop, Wylie Sheridan, was recently revealed to have attended the "Good Ol' Boys Roundup", an all-white and all-male gathering of law enforcement personnel, in Tennessee this past May. Ku Klux Klan merchandise and "Federal N——r Hunting Licenses" were openly distributed at this racist hoe-down.

* In September 1994, plainclothes pigs from 51 Division shot and killed Albert Moses, a Grenadian man. Those responsible have repeatedly changed their stories of what happened and have refused to co-operate with any investigations into Moses' death.

* Later in the fall of 1994, 51 Division kkkops went on a wildcat strike to protest an investigation launched against two of their boys. They had roughed up two Black men, one an Assignment Editor for City TV, when a piece of chicken one of them was eating was "mistaken" for a gun.

*During the summer of that same year, an investigation into a wave of racist attacks committed by MTHA security against residents, and nazi graffiti in and around the projects, revealed that a cell of open white supremacists was recruiting and organizing inside MTHA.

Located within walking distance of the white upper-klass enclave of Rosedale, Regent Park is an area where one most blatantly sees the contrast between the role of the police as civil servants in affluent white areas, and as an occupying army in poor communities of colour. One evening late this August, the contradiction blew up in everyone's face, and residents of the 'hood have since been organizing very publicly to get the kkkops out of Regent Park.

It all started when a young Black man, Andrew Grant, pointed out to a bike kkkop that the lives of children playing in the area were being endangered by cruisers driving recklessly through the Park without their lights on, supposedly "chasing a suspect". The kkkop responded, "suck my dick, n——r".

When Andrew returned the comment, back-up was called in and he was thrown to the ground. About five kkkops showed up out of nowhere and began kicking, beating and pepper-spraying him as he lay on the ground.

A crowd of people began to gather around, and Andrew's uncle Donovan Wynn came forward to demand to know why the police were beating his uncle. He too was pepper-sprayed, beaten, and thrown in the back of a cruiser. The crowd responded with a hail of rocks, bricks, and bottles from all directions.

Jennifer Telfer, a friend of Andrew and Donovan's, quickly went to alert the rest of their family—until she too was grabbed from behind by one kkkop, choked and arrested.

In total, 50 police vehicles and over 100 kkkops from several divisions were deployed to arrest three Black people. Some were carrying riot shotguns.

When the three were taken to the station, the kkkops held an emergency meeting to figure out what they could charge them with. All three were charged with assault police based on lies. Donovan, for example, was charged with pelting a bottle at a kkkop—but he was already on the ground when the debris started flying! Andrew also got "indecent exposure", for grabbing his crotch in response to the kkkop telling him to suck his dick.

All three were again beaten in custody. One kkkop told Jennifer to go back to her country of origin. She pointed out that he was one to talk, seeing as this is all Native land. He threw her against the wall and kicked her repeatedly in the stomach. When she was released a few days later, she had to be hospitalized immediately and is still in physiotherapy. Andrew and Donovan remain detained at the Don Jail. People in the community are especially insulted that Andrew is being described as a threat to the community, as he is a much-loved community worker and counselor for young kids.

Survivors of the raid and their friends and families are standing strong and refusing to be intimidated. They have hooked up with a number of justice and anti-racist community groups and individuals, most notably the Black Action Defence Committee. They are pursuing laying charges against the kkkops, and are raising funds to cover legal fees and medical bills for Jennifer.

They need all the support they can get! To get involved, contact Lucky at the Regent Park Community Centre at (416) 864-9138, or the Black Action Defence Committee at (416) 656-2232.

Summer of Native struggle

The summer of 1995 was marked by strong resistance among First Nations peoples across the country — and by military repression of the Canadian government.

At Gustafson Lake, British Columbia, a group of traditional Shuswap Sundancers succeeded in securing access to their sacred site. Throughout their protest, the RCMP flew spy planes and military helicopters overhead while 100s of soldiers flooded the remote area.

In Ontario, people of the Stoney Point reserve have been holding a portion of the Ipperwash Provincial Park identified as a burial ground since July 30. They need our support!

History of the Stoney Point Resistance

Using the War Measures Act , the Canadian Government "borrowed" Stoney Point Reserve during WWII to establish a military training facility, forcing over 200 Chippewa people to move to Kettle Point reserve or find homes elsewhere.

After the war, the Canadian Government reneged on their promise to return the land. In 1973, the government incorporated a small piece of the Stoney Point Reserve into the new Ipperwash Provincial Park, ignoring evidence that sacred burial grounds existed there.

At first when the Chippewa demanded their land back after the war, they were told that there were land mines placed on the land, and people couldn't return home. Yet a person from the reserve who assisted in the placement and later removal of the land mines told the people that there were none left on the land.

Then the government told them that there was Agent Orange buried on the site and human habitation was impossible. Still the Stoney Point people could not return home. Agent Orange had seeped into the land and water years before, but the damage wasn't of any relevance to the government, and neither did it deter military personnel from using the land and its resources.

Then, with more bureaucratic nonsense the Stoney Point people were informed that there was an endangered species of butterfly on the land. Yet the practice of military helicopters, practice shooting and motor vehicles weren't considered detrimental to the butterflies. 20 families of traditional peoples were.

On May 6, 1993, the Aazhoodena People, or the original keepers, returned to their land. By July 30 this year, they had regained control of the military base and moved into Ipperwash Provincial Park — despite a Supreme Court decision earlier in the month dismissing these people and their concern as being "not of public importance". Their actions forced the government to officially return the land used as the military base. But the government has not yet agreed to return the burial grounds.

Dudley George, a native activist, was assassinated by the OPP on September 6 at Ipperwash. His sister, Marilyn George, was returning from a routine food run when she discovered her brother with a gunshot wound to the heart. The OPP severely beat her and then took her in on suspicion of attempted murder.

The Ontario Chiefs have declared support for the Stoney Point people and an independent inquiry is in effect. Dudley George's funeral on September 11 brought over 1000 people, including members of American Indian Movement (AIM) from the U.S. and Canada, to mourn his death.

The Stoney Point people have negotiated a 30-day moratorium with the OPP until October 22. A military showdown is expected at that time.

Currently, supporters both native and non-native are promising to stay as long as it takes to re-claim Ipperwash Park. More people are gathering every day but more people are invited to be observers inside the Park. Food and clothing donations can be dropped off at Queen's Park, where the Canadian Alliance in Solidarity with Native Peoples are maintaining a 24 hour vigil.

United demo against racist pigs

ARA joined with the Black Action Defense Committee, the League of Indigenous Sovereign Nations, the Canadian Alliance in Solidarity with Native Peoples (CASNP), the Aboriginal Defence League, and the Toronto Coalition Against Racism, to protest police terror against Black communities and the First Nations (see accompanying articles) on September 22.

The march started at Queen's Park, where CASNP has been holding a 24-hour vigil. We marched over to police headquarters, then to RCMP headquarters, and then on to 51 Division in Regent Park, where residents had held two protests the week before.

Just the day before, two cops got off on charges of publicly strip-searching Audrey Smith, a Jamaican woman, over a year ago. This added even more fuel to people's anger.

Antifa cr

FORTY KM EAST OF TORONTO, THE TOWN OF PICKERING HAS BEEN A target of neo-nazis for several years. In 1992, the Heritage Front visited Dunbarton High to support some white students who'd made an obnoxious demand for "white History Month" as a reaction to the Black History Month celebrations at school. To the dismay of people, hundreds of white students stood by the nazis.

Meanwhile, a fascist scene was developing in Oshawa under Ken Barker, the Heritage Front's ambassador to the suburbs. This group didn't survive the disintegration of the Heritage Front generally, and the imprisonment of Ken Barker on weapons charges (now he's in Hamilton).

Today, the fascist presence is obvious in Pickering, Ajax and Oshawa — all part of Durham Region. In Oshawa, the bonehead gangsters call themselves the Oshawa Boot Boys, and hang out mostly in the downtown core. In Pickering, a younger breed of boneheads has infected some high schools, especially Dunbarton, Pine Ridge, and Ajax High.

One of the leading characters of the Pickering-Ajax pack is Ken Garbett, better known as Ken Garbage. Born in Stouffville, Ont., Ken hit the Toronto streets years ago, becoming involved with the "Isabella Skins" downtown. But he got busted and discredited himself among the white warriors by going into "protective custody", to escape the wrath of other prisoners.

When Ken got out of jail he moved to Ajax/Pickering with his brother Phil, and resumed his career as fascist 'teen organizer' at Pine Ridge. Only thing is — Ken's now at least 28 years old! Roaming around Durham malls, he did manage to attract some newcomers in the Durham area who don't know his shameful history. Meanwhile, his nazi buddies in Toronto were using his brown Buick in several confrontations with anti-racists. (Local tire-spikers are now following up.)

Word is that Ken is now retired, sick of the inbred infighting among his crew. Seems that Ajax bones aren't getting along with the Pickering crowd, and are holding cock-fights on the beach to settle their differences.

While most everyone loves to hear these stories of self-destructing fascists, the bones can still get away with wearing nazi insignia at school and even with spouting white power bullshit in their yearbooks. And they've got a lot of potential recruits — there's plenty of insecurity among those white kids who are watching more people of colour moving into the area and don't have enough imagination to appreciate it.

To counter the boneheads and create some conscious, positive, anti-racist space in Durham region, a group of high school students have given birth to their own, autonomous anti-racist / anti-fascist group. Durham Anti-Racist Action (DARA) is holding its first public event on October 27, a Rock Against Racism show featuring local favorites Rodent, Starkweather, Alter Ego, The Brown, as well as Pezz from Etobicoke and Toronto's Brainhooks (see details on back cover). $$ raised will go to producing flyers, buttons, stickers, posters, T-shirts and other anti-racist stuff.

Until they get their own P.O. Box and phone, DARA can be reached through Toronto ARA. Any like-minded folks in Durham region are encouraged to get in touch!

Rage against nazis in Oakville

It's June 23rd and time for ARA to invade the suburbs, in this case Oakville, Ontario. The high school kids in that particular 'burb had decided to throw a benefit for Toronto's ARA to raise money in the never ending fight against racism and fascism.

At first it seemed the show would never get off the ground as city officials became nervous at the thought of ARA invading their quaint little town. The Oakville Arena was the original sight for the gig, but the city wanted us, the ARA, to pay two off-duty cops 50 bucks an hour for security for the event! Since ARA has a policy of not working with the police (understandably),we said "no" and with the help of the Oakville teens, proceeded to look for another spot to have the show. We all settled on the Family Tree restaurant and went about setting up for the benefit.

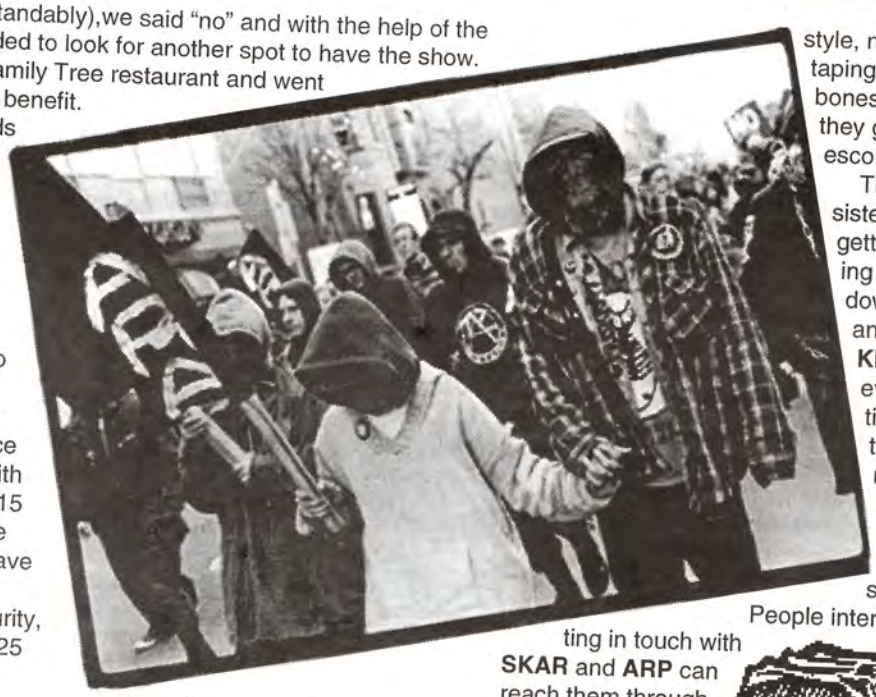
Up and coming bands like Trunk, Col.Bompkin, Pecola, Simple, and Grade as well as established acts like Hockey Teeth and New Day Rising headlined the bill and were more than happy to play. The basement, unfortunately, had no air conditioning and the place soon became a sauna with temperatures reaching 115 degrees!! Over 200 of the local kids turned out to have a great time and with 20 members of ARA as security, there were no problems. 25 boneheads went by the Oakville Arena and smashed some windows (?!?). They later threatened to come to the club and were only 12 blocks away, but didn't dare to when they heard about our numbers and thought it would be wiser to go on to their homes instead.



All in all a great time had by everyone who attended. A colossal "fuck right off" to the blond haired, blue eyed, bespectacled jack-ass who said, outside the benefit, that ARA's posters were violent and offensive, and that we were putting out the wrong message to young people. He suggested that we ignore the nazis and they'll go away. Yeah, right!

Nazi free streets

For some reason, this summer downtown Toronto was the crash pad for lots of out-of-town boneheads. They came in from Victoria, from Sarnia, Winnipeg... they hung out on Yonge Street for a few weeks with their dogs and pre-teen girlfriends... and they were mostly gone again.

They tried to make Yonge their own turf and did manage to discourage some anti-racists from spending time there — though we can't help but notice that they never picked any fights with the black and brown youth who hang out in the area. And with summer over, anti-racists are back on Yonge, some trying to pull together a scene called Anti-Racist Punks (ARP).

They also tried to intimidate anti-racists in Toronto's west end — on College, on Queen — but got absolutely nowhere. In wanna-be death squad style, nazis cruised Queen Street videotaping street kids. Sometimes a couple of bones came down to strut around until they got chased back to Yonge, or escorted away by the cops.

The response was strong and consistent. Queen Street punks started getting organized, sharing info , building an anti-racist, anti-fascist presence downtown, and hooking up with other anti-racists. The loose group, Street Kids Against Racism (SKAR), even had a speaker at a demonstration for Mumia Abu Jamal. And at the end of the summer, despite nazi attacks and police harassment, there are more anti-racists downtown than before. And more determined than ever to keep our streets a nazi-free zone.

People interested in getting in touch with SKAR and ARP can reach them through ARA.

Quick jabs for thick heads

Wolfie charged again

Wolfgang Droege has been charged yet again with transmitting hateful messages over the Heritage Front HateLine. This time his co-defendant is June French, ex of "Howdy Himmler" Max French. Interestingly, this time Wolfie and the Human Rights Commission made a deal to keep anti-racists away from the hearing. The charges have received almost no media attention, and the court date was reportedly set for December 24 (!!). It's a long way from January 1993, when Wolfie was openly organizing a fascist contingent to march on the Courthouse. Guess he learned that he couldn't out-organize anti-fascists, who turned out a crowd of 600 up against the Front's 40 wackos.

George Wooten

Barrister and Solicitor.

Don't get us wrong! This man is not a nazi. He is just a poor lawyer who represents Heritage Front members in courts.

No...no way is he a fascist!

Mark Lemire's cover blown?

Here's Mark Lemire, the "brain" behind the Canadian Patriots Network, a nazi cyberspace operating out from his bungalow. He caters to clients like the Heritage Front, holocaust denier Ernst "the neckless" Zundel and racist Resistance Records proprietor and steroid junkie George Burdi. Once he operated as the "intelligence man" for the Heritage Front watching anti-racist events.

But does he really have another role? Take a close look at this picture...we caught him pants down "chit-chatting" with a undercover metro cop on September 22. Bad Mark, no donut!

Lawyer for German Nazi stomped outside court!

On August 30th, a lawyer for a German nazi who branded Auschwitz a "myth" was attacked with a baseball bat and a broom handle on Wednesday by a masked gang outside the Hamburg courthouse where he was defending his client.

Attorney Juergen Rieger was taken to hospital with a head injury, bruising and grazes but was allowed home after treatment. One man, suspected of being a member of the gang of between five and seven, was detained.

Reiger was representing one of two men on the first day of their trial on charges of inciting public disorder, for saying Steven Spielberg's film Schindler's List had won Oscars by "keeping the Auschwitz myth alive".

Viking back in the pokey!

Chris Newhook, pretentiously known as "Viking", is back in the clink again after a summer of dealing dope and trying to pick up 12 and 13-year-old women on Yonge Street. Chris had only been out of prison a few months after his one-year stint for getting beaten up by anti-racists in June 1993.

Jerry "the hacker" charged

Jerry Lincoln, another Zundelite, has been charged with mischief—for blocking the phone line of a political opponent. Anti-racist and left organizations throughout the city are interested to hear about this development; many have found their voice mail boxes and other phone lines to be targets of constant harassment by mysterious callers. So whose freedom of speech are Jerry Lincoln and his racial comrades really interested in protecting?

WATCH OUT!

This old fart with a baseball cap thinks he's James Bond 007 for the racist right in Toronto, showing up at any anti-government event in town. But it's not too hard to make him lose his cool and start him ranting against immigrants or people on welfare. He's too old to be pushed around, but if you tell him to get the fuck out, he generally obliges!

Nervous Zundel swamped by cops

As Zundel rebuilds his bunker in Toronto, his operation seems to be falling apart in Germany.

Zundel's protegé, Ewald Bela Althans, is back in the clink, doing at 3 1/2 year bit for denying the Holocaust, preaching racial hatred, and (gasp!) insulting the Federal Republic of Germany.

Of course, 3 1/2 years is nothing near justice for Althans, who has been a leader in the nazi movement since 1991, when former bigwig Michael Kuehnen died. During that period, membership in nazi groups grew ten times over, and countless attacks, arson, and murders were committed. Althans was also a major jetsetter, organizing a new nazi base in Moscow, and regularly travelling to North America to commune with his guru Zundel. He may even have met with the Michigan Militia, associated with Oklahoma City bomber Timothy McVeigh.

"Ohh do you see any bad ara people Ernie?"

What was most interesting about Althans' trial was his "defence" — he claimed that he hadn't really been a nazi since 1990! This statement would be pretty cryptic if there hadn't been an exposé about him published in July's Der Spiegel, the "Time magazine" of Germany. The article claims that since 1990, Althans was a spy for the Verfassungsshutz, the secret police of Bavaria (a German state, historically very right wing).

Althans

Neither Althans nor the Verfassungsshutz has officially confirmed or denied this report yet. Der Spiegel suggests that the cops cut Althans loose because of his questionable loyalties. Were the borderline fascist secret police using Althans, or was he using them?

Cop involvement in nazi leadership is a recurring theme in Germany, and Canada too. Another Zundel buddy, Bernd Schmitt, ran a martial arts school and trained a number of skinheads. When some of his pupils used his techniques and firebombed a Turkish family's home in Solingen (murdering five people), Schmitt didn't even have to testify because he was working for the state.

Similarly in Canada, redneck and nazi Carney Nerland literally got a away with murder, receiving only a four-year sentence for killing First Nations trapper Leo LaChance, in Alberta some years ago. Nerland was a police informant at the time. And now, one year after Heritage Front manager Grant Bristow was exposed as a CSIS agent — we've still seen no new charges laid against any of his old Front buddies. Good job, Grant.

Mumia alive and fighting

Without the efforts of thousands of people around the world, a kick-ass journalist and activist would have been executed in Pennsylvania on August 17.

Mumia Abu Jamal joined the Black Panther Party as a teenager in Philadelphia, at a time when the movement for Black Liberation was growing across the U.S.. He became the office's Minister of Information at age 15 and came under FBI surveillance. Mumia survived the all-out police attack on the Panthers in early 70s (many were killed and ended up in jail), and became a community journalist. He worked on talk radio shows and wrote for different newspapers, talking about issues usually ignored by mainstream media. In particular, he exposed police terrorism against the Black community in Philadelphia.

In 1981, Mumia was framed for the killing of police officer who had been beating up his brother in the street. The trial was a total farce -- he wasn't allowed to defend himself, many witnesses were intimidated from testifying by cops, and his political work was brought up to scare the jury into sentencing him to death. The judge himself, Albert F. Sabo, is a lifetime member of the cult-like Fraternal Order of Police. He has sentenced more men to die (31 to date, only two of them white) than any other sitting judge in America.

Mumia has fought the sentence and conviction all the way, and is currently trying to get a new trial. But cops and courts in Pennsylvania can't wait — a death warrant was signed in early June, setting August 17 at the execution date. Huge demonstrations in Europe, South Africa, and North America greeted this news. Eventually, even big-time European politicians were pressured to write to in protest, not to mention Nelson Mandela. In Toronto, ARA participated in the Toronto Committee to Free Mumia Abu Jamal, holding demonstrations, and weekly pickets outside the consulate.

This international outcry against a barbaric and politically motivated execution forced Judge Sabo (yes — the same cop-loving hanging judge that sent Mumia up in the first place) to "stay" the execution (that is, to put it off). The latest news is that Sabo denied Mumia a new trial, to no one's surprise. Mumia will be appealing that decision to the next level of the court system, where he might have a better chance. But one thing's for sure — without lots of pressure from Mumia's supporters, the U.S. courts are never going to let him go free.

So keep in touch with campaign, buy Mumia's book if you can (Life From Death Row, published by Addison-Wesley) and write to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. Or try other creative ideas for getting the message across.

Contact the Partisan Defence Committee and arrange to show their video about Mumia's case at your local school, library, community group, bowling team, etc.. The PDC has been working on Mumia's defense for years. They can be reached in Toronto at 416-593-4138.
